The Katie DeCubellis Memorial Foundation was established to keep the spirit and memory alive of a young Narragansett girl killed by a drunk driver on Oct. 29, 1999.

The foundation has awarded two scholarships to Narragansett residents so far, and is working toward increasing the number of scholarships and developing an educational video that will be distributed to driver's education instructors and other groups and agencies throughout the state.

On Sunday, Nov. 4, the foundation will host a Thank-You Celebration from 2 to 5 p.m. at the North Beach Clubhouse at the Narragansett Town Beach. The free event will include food, music, volleyball, face-painting and a bonfire and is the foundation's way of thanking the community for its support.

Please join us as we continue to celebrate Katie's life and thank you for helping us keep her spirit and memory alive, said her father, John DeCubellis, executive director of the foundation.

Soup supper benefits area kitchens and shelters

Members of the South County Potters Cooperative have made their bowls now they want to fill them, too.

Empty Bowls, 2001 is set for Friday, Nov. 2 between 5 and 8 p.m. at the Helme House, 2587 Kingstown Rd., Kingston.

The event, which last year raised more than $2,000, will benefit numerous Rhode Island soup kitchens and shelters. The potters hand- make the ceramic bowls and the friends of the South County Art Association make gallons of soup and bake loaves of bread. Local merchants provide tables, chairs and serving items.

Those who pay the $15 for adults and $10 for children can fill their bowl as many times as they like and then take the bowl home.

For information call 783-2195.
